Client Verification

Only verified users can place orders. Only users who have successfully completed appropriate KYC are permitted to place orders.

Order Handling

Orders are submitted to our Order Handling System, which is protected by our secure

- Time-stamped and acknowledged
- Validated for account and balance status
- Routed securely via API to Liquidity Providers
- Rejected with notification if it fails any criteria

Orders are either fully executed or cancelled; partial execution is not permitted unless explicitly allowed in future product features.

Liquidity Providers

We work with external Liquidity Providers to execute trades. We periodically review execution arrangements and liquidity provider performance to ensure consistent

Recurring order (D the amount of euro price at the future

- Execution price execution price for each individual order is determined at the time of the scheduled trigger, based on the prevailing market price and applicable spread at that moment.
- Best execution apply to each individual execution event. The Company takes all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible result for the Client at the time of each scheduled execution. The Company is not required to seek a specific price outcome beyond obtaining the best available market price at the time of routing.
- The Client may cancel or modify a standing recurring instruction at any time before the next scheduled execution trigger. Once a scheduled execution has been initiated, it follows the same order handling and finality rules as a standard market order.

If special instructions (e.g. limit pricing) cannot be met, the order is cancelled and the client is notified.

- Set price orders: The order becomes final when the trigger price is matched and the order is routed to the Liquidity Provider for execution. Prior to the trigger price being reached, the Client may cancel the pending instruction through the platform interface.
- Recurring orders (DCA): Each individual scheduled execution becomes final at the moment the trigger fires and the order is routed to the Liquidity Provider. The standing recurring order may be cancelled by the Client at any time before the trigger price is reached.

Conflicts

Kriptomat:

- Discloses any real or potential conflicts of interest.
- Uses automated trading systems to execute orders and does not engage in market manipulation or order interference.
- Prohibits insider trading, front running, or other abusive behaviour and prohibits employees from accessing or using confidential order flow information for personal gain.

Monitoring & Oversight

Our operations, compliance, and IT teams continuously monitor:

- Platform stability
- Spread anomalies
- Execution quality
- Compliance with MiCAR
