Payment infrastructure can make or break a business wind-down.

While the legal mandate might be clear, the actual operational challenge — moving money across complex jurisdictions, multiple currencies, and fragmented beneficiaries — determines whether a process succeeds or stalls.

In our latest article, our Head of Escrow and Paymaster Services, Daniel Dunne, explores how an escrow and paymaster structure transforms a wind-down mandate in practice. He breaks down:

- Why payment infrastructure must be designed in tandem with the legal mandate.

- How separating safeguarding from the disbursement streamlines execution.

Discover how Ebury Institutional supports insolvency practitioners and liquidators with a robust payment infrastructure.

The complexities of global maritime finance are often paid on time. For shipping companies, managing vessel accounts can often be a challenge. The interconnected nature of shipping means that traditional, siloed financial setups are not always designed to meet these needs.

Shippers and agents are often faced with challenges across fragmented markets and large margins. The Ebury's integrated maritime treasury solutions support the unique demands of global maritime by bringing vessels' financial ecosystems into a single, secure platform for optimised currency spend and easier, more streamlined operations.

- Dedicated vessel accounts: Manage OpEx easily with centralised accounts tailored to each vessel's operational lifecycle
- Simplified reporting: Effortlessly balance complex portfolios and report to multiple principals from one dashboard
- Transparent FX: Protect your cash flows against market volatility

AI has already changed the way we work. Now, autonomous workflows are becoming a strategic necessity. Join Ebury and Finextra for a webinar on how agentic AI is shaping treasury operations.

In this webinar, we will cover:

- Opportunities to transform treasury operations with agentic AI
- Examples of early- and mid-term use cases, plus what success looks like

- How to decide what to automate and where human-in-the-loop is still essential
- Ways to navigate the implications of approaching the agent-to-agent ecosystem

Join us on Tuesday, July 14th, at 16:00 CEST.
